GUIDE TO WOMEN'S STUDIES ELECTRONIC/ONLINE RESOURCES IN THE SIROW REGION

OCCASIONAL PAPER NO. 15

Compiled by: Ruth Dickstein, Patricia Doherty and Patricia Seavey

INTRODUCTION

This first edition of the Guide to Women's Studies Electronic/Online Resources in the SIROW Region is intended to help member institutions share information about how to access regional resources which have a particular focus on women's studies.

The information contained in this guide is the result of a questionnaire which was sent to SIROW member institutions in the fall of 1994, and represents the holdings of the 23 of SIROW member libraries which responded to the survey.

It is our hope that subsequent editions of the SIROW guide will be enhanced by expanded information on all member libraries as well as the Mexican institutions (El Colegio de la Frontera Norte and El Colegio de Sonora) which collaborate with SIROW as well as by new electronic/online resources as they become available in the future.

The guide is organized alphabetically by state and institution. A three digit code has been developed to identify each member institution and is used in conjunction with Appendix I which lists microform resources of potential interest.

COLLECTION INFORMATION:

The collection of women's studies materials at the A.S.U. Libraries is comprehensive. These materials, which are located throughout the library system, include monographs, serials, government documents, microforms, manuscripts and archives, ephemera, posters and broadsides, and photographs. Arizona State University also has an extensive microforms collection which focuses on women's history and a variety of other topics of interest to women. Other materials relating to women can be located by searching the following databases, available only in Luhrs Reading Room, Department of Archives and Manuscripts, Hayden Library: Manuscripts and Archives Database and The Chicano Database. Three special collections of interest to women's studies include the Lucille B. Kaufman, Agnes Smedley, and Patricia Fullinwider Papers.

COLLECTION INFORMATION:

The strengths of the general collection in the area of women's studies lie in the areas of feminist theory, United States women's history, and British and American women's literature. The collection is being expanded in the areas of international and ethnic minority women. Reference and media collections are strong in the area of feminism, and NAU subscribes to approximately 30 women's studies journals. The gems for women's studies research are contained within the holdings of the Special Collections and Archives Department which document women's lives in the Colorado Plateau region from the territorial period to the present. Both historical and contemporary oral histories of Native American women's lives are also represented. The Brown, Bahl and Watson Collection relates to public health nursing especially on the Navajo Reservation from the 1920s to the 1980s.
